Data services

Mobile Internet

Using a phone that supports GPRS or 3G, you can have an “always on” connection to services via the Mobile Internet to visit sites including Google, Yahoo!, eBay and Amazon or send and receive your personal e-mail including Yahoo! Mail and many others.

With a mobile internet pack you can:

- access amazing content and downloads via Orange World
- browse the whole of the Mobile Internet
- send and receive your personal email (either via Orange World or direct to your phone’s inbox, depending on email provider and handset)

megabytes explained

The number of megabytes (MB) you use per month will depend on what you do on the Mobile Internet or how many emails you send and receive (which will determine the best value bundle for you).

For example, 4MB of data means you could do all of the following in one month:

- browse 250 colour pages, including picture galleries, sports action, live news, maps and more
- download two wallpapers each month
- download two ringtones each month
- download one film trailer or video clip each month

As a general guide, sending 100 short emails each containing 100 words is approximately equivalent to 1MB.

Orange Mobile Broadband

With an Orange Mobile Broadband dongle you can gain access to the web and email on your laptop while you’re out and about. For Orange Mobile Broadband pricing please go to orange.co.uk/mobilebroadband or call 150 from your Orange phone.

Network performance promise - we'll give you credit if you're cut off

Orange is the only network to give you up to a minute of talk time back, in the unlikely event that you're cut off during a call.

- call the same number back within five minutes, and before calling anyone else, and we'll credit your account
- redialled calls must last longer than three seconds for credit to be added
- calls to fixed charge numbers, like Orange Directory Enquiries, will be credited as a call at your standard rate
- on Talkshare accounts the credit will be available for the rest of the group to use
- calls lost by a third party don't qualify for credit

Our network promise doesn't apply to 3G, international calls, calls made whilst abroad, calls made whilst national roaming or freephone 0800 numbers.

Early termination charge price guide information

- if you wish to terminate your contract early you are required to pay the remaining monthly line rental charges to cover your minimum contract period. However, you could be eligible for a discount, as explained below.
- we pay money to other communications providers when you make calls and send texts to their customers. We receive money when you receive calls and texts from the customers of other communications providers.
The rate at which these payments are made is subject to changes over time due to factors including changes to relevant Ofcom regulations. If we pay more to the other communications providers than we receive from them, we'll make a saving if you terminate your contract early.
- we have looked at the average calls and texts made and received on a range of tariffs and calculated whether on average we are likely to save money if you terminate early (before the end of your minimum term) and if so, how much. That average saving is the discount which you will receive.
- the discount varies according to the tariff you are on. The table below sets the discount which will be applied to any tariff which falls within a particular band of tariffs according to the cost of the monthly line rental.

New discounts which will apply to each monthly line rental (as relevant)

from	to	discount*
£0.00	£20.00	0
£20.01	£30.00	14p
£30.01	£40.00	56p
£40.01	£50.00	£1.08

from	to	discount*
£50.01	£60.00	82p
£60.01	£70.00	£3.49
£70.01	£80.00	£4.73

* Based on current usage profiles and termination rates. Subject to change.

Your Early Termination Charge is worked out by: subtracting the appropriate discount (see tables above) from your monthly line rental (Exc VAT). This is then divided by 30 to give a daily Early Termination Charge, and multiplied by the number of days left on your contract.

If you are on Everyday 50 a different calculation is used. Your Early Termination charge is calculated by dividing the appropriate discount (see tables above) by 30 to get a daily discount and then subtracting that daily discount from 43p which is your daily line rental excluding VAT. The result is then multiplied by the number of days left on your contract.
