Early Termination Charges Explained

WHAT ARE EARLY TERMINATION CHARGES (ETC'S)?

When you order services from EE there will normally be a minimum contract period of 12, 18 or 24 months. If you decide to stop receiving a service (other than because you have a right to do that without paying an Early Termination Charge) within this minimum contract period, you'll normally have to pay an Early Termination Charge. The charge is the compensation you pay us for not keeping the service for the minimum period you agreed to when you took the service. From 29th November 2020, following a change to HMRC rules, this charge will be subject to VAT.

Will I have to pay an Early Termination Charge if I am beyond my minimum contract period?

No. An Early Termination Charge only applies if you cancel within your minimum contract period. For example, if you took a service with a 24 month minimum contract period and then wanted to stop receiving the service 25 months later, no Early Termination Charge would be payable. However, in most cases if you decide to stop a service, whether your minimum contract period has ended or not, you will need to give us up to 30 days' advance notice and you'll continue paying for the service until that notice period ends. (If you are switching to another Communications Provider, this notice period is generally reduced to align with the time it takes to complete the switch.)

What will I be charged?

What you're charged depends on how long is left to run on your minimum contract period, factoring in any discounts you may have. The following steps are used to calculate the ETC:

- We take the remaining amount you were due to pay up to the end of the minimum commitment period
- We take off VAT
- We take off the costs we save (e.g. in payments to suppliers) as a result of you leaving early
- We give a 1% discount for early receipt of your payment
- We add VAT to the final ETC

See below for examples:

Example 1

You have a broadband package for £45 a month, with a monthly recurring discount of £10, which means you are contractually committed to pay £35 a month. You have four months left in your minimum commitment period.

- We multiply £35 (£45 - £10 discount) by four, totalling £140
- We take off VAT, reducing it to £116.67
- We take off the costs we save (for example, £15 per month, multiplied by four = £60), leaving £56.67
- We discount by 1% for early receipt, making £56.10
- We add on VAT, making your final ETCs £67.32

What happens if I cancel part way through a month?

We work out the charge for any part month on a pro rata daily basis.
